- Apr 13 VMSC rally. Oded by Neale Dickinson and Scott Powell. Another simple TSD rally, so coerce, cajole, or threaten your friends to run it. Run it yourself!! See flyer for group discounts.
- Apr 17 VMSC monthly meeting at La Siesta on Patterson Ave.
- Apr 20 Rally in Danville, Va. Most details are superfluous except that first place is worth $100- that's right, one-hundred-one-zero-zero-the-century-mark-ruin-your-amateur-status dollars. And here's the best part- after perusing the flyer there's no limit on equipment. Did we hear all the Xerons click into "on course"? $5.00 preregistered, $6.00 day of the event. Other cash prizes and gift certificates. Might be worth a trip to Danville. Gary Stout has the flyer (I absconded with it at gunpoint. Ed.).
- Apr 27 VMSC autocross at Ft. Lee. Oded by the Weirs and Neale Dickinson. First points-autocross of the year. A chance to see how SOLO II classes really homologate. Flyer this issue.
- May 1 VMSC bored meeting at the Gilchrist's.
- May 15 VMSC monthly meeting.
- May 18 VMSC autocross at AJD. Oded by Jay Dorsk, Greg Miller, and Rich Fohl.
- May 25 Hunter's Annual Picnic, Indy 500, Volleyball Fest. The usual place- the boonies. Details next month.
- May 29 VMSC bored meeting at the Hunter's (while the house is still clean). The date was moved at Presidential request (i.e., Beth talked louder than the rest of us).

SCHEDULE

I'M OKAY, YOU'RE OFF-COURSE

by Gary Stout

As the problems of old age become more acute, I'm discovering that it requires about two months to recuperate from the crippling effects of writer's cramp (and a severe case of I-really-don't-feel-like-writing-that-tonightis). Thus explains the one month gap in articles.

As a forewarning, this piece will no doubt be the most straightforward and concise (read boring) of the five. There's really not a lot you can do or say to make rally equipment interesting, much less intriguing and mysterious. But, not wanting to permit the word "can't" to creep into a discourse on rallying, I'll try:

It was a tiny, sordid basement-saloon (in Marrakesh, I believe- an incidental detail, except to place the scene in the squalor and poverty that plagues cities of the sort). The faint, yet piquant, aroma of anisette mixed with the musky smoke-filled air. Air so heavy that you didn't breathe it so much as urge it into your lungs. The large, inert ceiling fan gave mute testimony to the thick atmosphere- a still, silent monument.

I had frequented this dimly-lit crypt of a cafe for several months. It appealed to my scant resources, the service was cordial but oblivious to less than above-board dealings, and occasional female companionship could be found (and for a reasonable price).

Yet this evening was to prove different- unique- a night I haven't forgotten since. It was shortly past two. I was preparing for my usual lonely walk home after paying homage to another day of hopeless oblivion. Perhaps it was fate- luck, I think. At that moment, the door at the top of the stairs creaked its way open to reveal a face I recognized from a few of the American newspapers that filter their way onto the dust-covered streets. I had forgotten the name but remembered the face- chiseled, as if from granite, rich blue-black hair that served as a frame for his deep, sullen eyes, features hardened from years of TSD rallying. On his arm was a woman- of oriental extraction I would have guessed. Her appearance in perfect counterpoint to his- soft, subtle, understated. She was wearing a silk sarong-like gown of aqua and gold that revealed more to the mind than to the eyes.

To my great fortune, not a table was empty. I seized the opportunity to offer to share mine. I had rallied before, in what seemed like a previous life it was so long ago and far removed, but never with any, even middling, success. Perhaps this was my chance to turn my career around- yes, a chance, that's all I truly needed.

My vain attempts to steer the conversation toward rallying were elegantly blunted. Words such as "CAS", "jog", and "checkpoint" brought no response. I felt crushed, as if the sleazy building had engulfed me. It was then that he leaned across the small table, with that piercing, logic-filled glare that seasoned rallyists develop, and asked, "what are you after?"

As if I were some trained parrot, I immediately defined "after" in its normal dictionary sense. Embarrassed and humiliated, I recounted tearfully my abortive endeavors at the sport in which he was so accomplished.

It might have been that this great man took pity on me (although I doubt this, rallyists never show pity- unless, of course, it's defined in the Glossary), but he began to expound articulately his philosophy of rallying. But even he admitted he could only guess why he had been so successful.

"Equipment. Equipment, that's the key. You don't win if you don't have the right equipment." I found myself appreciating the man's straightforwardness. "I'm not talking Xerons, computers, driven/non-driven sending units. I'm talking equipment. The kind you can throw in your Olds 88, and go out and win a rally. Pens, lots of pens. Different colors, too- I like colors. Use them to circle pauses, speed changes, NRCs, NVNs, whatever- I like circles, too. Hi-liters, also, use them to mark off instructions. If you go off-course, you can read the instructions again. Don't use magic markers, you can't read what you've gone over- and they bleed through to the next sheet". The reference to blood seemed somehow appropriate, considering the surroundings.

He appeared to be warming to my raptured attention as his hands began making sweeping, wide gestures as he spoke. "I always carried tape- duct tape, scotch tape, masking tape. Had a thing for tape- couldn't keep enough of it. And those pads of yellow note paper with the adhesive on one side, and 3 x 5 cards. Great for writing notes and Special Instructions. Instruction goes into effect, stick it on the dash. Instruction is cancelled, yank it off and throw it in the back- neatness never won a rally!"

His speech had become almost staccato-like as he bombarded me with this priceless information. "Get yourself a calculator and watch. How good they are should depend on how good you are. The better you get, the better they ought to be. Kept all this junk in a blue plastic file box. Rally coming up- just grab the box, everything's there. No fuss, no bother".

He lit a cigarette and drew heavily on it, as if to add emphasis to his next point. "Center-mount clipboard- best thing I ever did. Lets the driver read the instructions, too. You know how bad their memories are." I nodded knowingly, recalling several amnesia cases I'd rallied with. "Doesn't have to be fancy. But everything's there for the world to see. You don't have to worry that he's looking for 648 when he should be looking for '648'. Best piece of equipment you'll ever get. If God rallied, He'd have a center-mount clipboard".

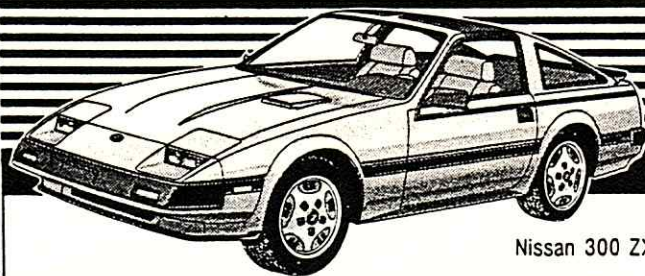

"I could go on. Things like fix-a-flat, jumper cables, tool box, but I always felt they were like a self-fulfilling prophecy. Look kid, it's getting late and a good rally-ist is always in bed by four. Just remember- equipment". I nodded gratefully as he arose to disappear into the misty shroud that was a constant of this habitat.

As sudden as his departure was the enlightened feeling that gripped me at that instant. It was as if I had met a great prophet of yore who had blessed me with wisdom many pay princely sums to acquire.

The next morning I awoke, and, armed with the knowledge I had been granted, departed those dismal, decrepit surroundings to chart a new course with my life and my rallying.

ATTENTION ALL VMSC MEMBERS AND FRIENDS OF VMSC:

Income tax REFUND time is here again and what better way to INVEST your money than to PURCHASE some of our top quality VMSC merchandise.

Why WASTE your hard earned funds on such frivolous items as rent or mortgage payments (follow Andy Capps lead - fun before necessity), automobile payments (keep that vintage 1952 Rambler one more year), loan payments (the banks have too much of your money now), home repairs (it really doesn't need fixing), paying past due bills (if they waited this long, let them wait till next month), shoes for the kids (summers here, so let them go barefoot), or FOOD (you really need to diet anyway).

The dog days are just around the corner and VMSC has a full line of T-SHIRTS and other fabulous CLOTHING ITEMS to keep you cool during these hot days. All items are available in a wide variety of sizes, colors, styles, etc. AND with our new navy logo's you can now purchase that light colored item you wanted so much last summer (we still have the white logo's for the darker items). Each fine item of VMSC clothing will vastly IMPROVE your current, rather shabby wardrobe and they WILL really impress your friends (limited warrantee on the amount and type of impressment). Show off your true colors (and fine tastes) by ORDERING TODAY and wearing your VMSC clothing to the next Club event (or to your bosses annual picnic).

VMSC THERMAL STEINS are just what the doctor (and the Club merchandise director) ordered, to keep your favorite summer brew COLD. These GIANT 16 oz. steins come complete with the ORIGINAL red-white-blue VMSC LOGO on both sides, they are virtually unbreakable (not recommended for use as a wheel chock while working on your car), they are dishwasher safe (top rack if you have one, kitchen sink if you don't), they have an easy grip handle, AND they ARE an item no self-respecting VMSC Member would be caught without, at HERS/HIS (libbers take note) favorite summer formal social event. ADDITIONALLY, these steins will soon become a valuable collectors item as we have a limited supply (it is impossible to calculate what the investment value of these steins will be in the future, but it will surely reach unknown proportions). Keep your cool this summer by ORDERING TODAY and using your VMSC stein at every Club party (or your bosses annual picnic).

PLEASE support VMSC by ORDERING your favorite (or most disliked) VMSC merchandise item for yourself (or a friend) TODAY, before you SPLURGE your refund needlessly (if you had to pay extra taxes, order now while you're still in the mood to be taken). Our everyday low prices (no other car club sells these items cheaper) and easy payment terms (cash up front) makes buying VMSC merchandise a true joy.

P.S.: VMSC merchandise makes a wonderful present for the one you LOVE. If there is a birthday, anniversary, wedding, baby shower, bar mitzvah, etc. (whose is unimportant) in your future, WHY NOT GIVE them the gift of a lifetime (when you care enough to give the very best), VMSC MERCHANDISE (we THANK YOU for your support).
